The diagram shows two identical, empty tables side-by-side. Each table has a dark blue header bar at the top and a light blue body. The body is divided into three columns: a large left column, a medium right column, and a small right column. The tables are empty, representing a baseline or control condition.

The diagram illustrates a parallel processing architecture with two identical units. Each unit is composed of a large light blue rectangular block at the bottom and a smaller dark blue rectangular block at the top. The two units are connected by a horizontal line, suggesting a shared bus or a parallel connection between the two processing elements.

The diagram illustrates two identical, empty tables side-by-side. Each table consists of a blue header bar at the top and a light blue body with 6 rows and 3 columns. The tables are separated by a vertical line.
